Emergency Supplies for intubation

What grips you when your intubated patient collapses on the way from the ICU to Radiology for an urgent CT scan? In an emergency situation such as this, having all your emergency supplies will save a life. That is what the Bug Busters QC team has done. Harnessing their years of experience, they packed the standard supplies into a customised container. A system of replenishing and control was also established to ensure that everything in the container is in place and usable.

Now, all it takes is a split second to grab the container and they will be all set to move the intubated patient from one place to another. We call this Innovation.
